Australian Natural Therapeutics Group and NUBU Pharmaceuticals advance New Zealand's medicinal cannabis market

Byron Bay, Australia – In a landmark collaboration, Australian Natural Therapeutics Group (ANTG), a leader in pharmaceutical-grade cannabis cultivation and manufacturing, has expanded its partnership with NUBU Pharmaceuticals, New Zealand's largest medicinal cannabis distributor, heralding a significant expansion in the region's medicinal cannabis market.

ANTG now boasts the largest product portfolio in the country, featuring eight innovative products, including both THC and CBD flowers and oils. In recent weeks, the range has introduced the first truly full spectrum CBD product to the New Zealand market in ANTG Eve Oil, with the diverse product portfolio also featuring ANTG's award-winning high-THC Rocky Oil, Luna, a balanced oil, and Elan, ANTG's premium CBD isolate oil.

A pioneer in developing research-backed, locally produced Australian cannabis products, ANTG has successfully brought four proprietary cultivars to the New Zealand market, with products ranging from low-THC, and high-CBD flower varieties to moderate and high-strength THC flowers. The evolution of the product range is testament to ANTG's commitment to responding to stakeholder feedback and meeting the individual needs of patients.

"Our collaboration with NUBU is yet another milestone," said ANTG CEO, Matt Cantelo. "This is a proud moment for both companies and a fantastic opportunity to contribute to the well-being of patients in New Zealand by providing them with high-quality, innovative medicinal cannabis products.

Mark Dye, CEO of NUBU, added, "ANTG's forward thinking approach to medicinal cannabis saw them become the first company to legally sell dried flower in New Zealand, and now, the first to market with strain specific oils. Dye continues "And we aren't done yet, patients can look forward to an even wider selection of accessible medicinal cannabis products via ANTG and NUBU in the not-too-distant future."
